Additional Information

Native Vision in Washington State presented by Living Voices

Living Voices, a nationally acclaimed educational theater company, is pleased to present "Native Vision in Washington State." Combining Live performance (presented by Lily Gladstone, Blackfeet/Nez Perce) and archival film, Native Vision brings to life the history of the boarding schools and the Code Talkers during the 1930s and 40s. A young Native woman struggles to keep her culture and become a modern healer as her community joins the U.S. in World War II. For a detailed description of this and other theatrical performances offered through Living Voices, please visit their website: www.livingvoices.org.

Access to Vi Hilbert Collection Recordings on Internet

Northwest Heritage Resources and the University of Washington Ethnomusicology Archives announced that Voices of the First People, a website honoring the life and work of Upper Skagit elder Vi Hilbert, is now on-line at www.northwestheritageresources.org (from homepage, click on Voices of the First People link). The site provides online access to audio and video recordings from the Vi Hilbert Collection in the UW Ethnomusicology Archives and features Hilbert's work as a storyteller, teacher, and culture bearer. The direct link is: <http://www.music.washington.edu/ethno/hilbert/collection.html>

Salmon Homecoming Celebration School Days Thursday and Friday, September 20th and 21st, 2012

31 May 2012

We welcome students to attend the 20th Annual Salmon Homecoming Celebration School Days, to be held at Waterfront Park and Seattle Aquarium on September 20th and 21st, 2012 in Seattle, Washington. This annual event provides an opportunity to enrich students' understanding of our environment and the links to Native American culture that are so integral to the Puget Sound region. Approximately 900 students and teachers from underserved communities in Seattle, as well as youth from local Native American tribes will be brought together to share this multicultural experience. The Salmon Homecoming event is sponsored by the Salmon Homecoming Alliance, a coalition including Northwest Washington tribes, the Seattle Aquarium, the Northwest Indian Fisheries Commission, Seattle Public Utilities, and other regional environmental education and conservation organizations and government agencies.

The School Days celebration will feature cultural programs including student dance/song performances from local Tribes, oral history and storytelling by Native speakers, as well as arts and crafts demonstrations. Salmon-themed dive shows will also be offered by the Aquarium, and over a dozen local environmental education organizations will help spread the word about salmon habitat protection and restoration thorough hands-on activities and information booths. The event is free, and the Salmon Homecoming Alliance will provide bus transportation for participating schools needing assistance with advance registration.

This year's theme is "Why Should I Care About Salmon?" The environmental education organizations at the event will focus their hands-on activities on salmon life cycle and ecology; habitat conservation and restoration, rainwater runoff & pollution; and culture & communities. Teachers will be provided pre-event activities to prepare their students for this event. The activities and learning content at the event will incorporate 4th and 5th grade Washington State science learning standards in systems, application, and inquiry learning, as well as content standards in life science.

Participation in this event will be limited to 900 student participants. The Salmon Homecoming event is targeting Indian Education programs in Washington school districts, as well as Tribal schools in the State. A limited number of schools from the Seattle School District, in conjunction with the Seattle Public Utilities "Restore Our Waters" program, "Salmon in Schools" will also participate in the program. The Salmon Homecoming Alliance encourages any interested Indian Educators to contact us as soon as possible if you are interested in participating in this exciting event!

"Since Time Immemorial: Tribal Sovereignty Curriculum Training Workshops

Teaching about Tribal sovereignty has been challenging until now.

OSPI's new web-based Tribal sovereignty curriculum is:

- Locally based so you can connect student learning to the Tribes in your area
- Accurate and reliable so you can feel confident about what you are teaching
- Endorsed by OSPI and Washington's federally recognized Tribes
- Easy to access so you don't have to wait for materials—they are just a click away
- Free (mostly)
- Easy to integrate within your existing units so you don't have to feel like you have to throw out your own lessons to "make room" for these materials
- Aligned to the state's Social Studies standards, the grade level expectations, and the common core standards in English and language arts.

When House Bill 1495 was passed by the Washington State Legislature in 2005 officially recommending the inclusion of Tribal history in all common schools, a powerful opportunity for educators and Tribes arose. "Since Time Immemorial (STI): Tribal Sovereignty in Washington State" is an on-line curriculum developed through the OSPI Office of Native Education. STI, pilot tested for the past several years in 14 schools throughout our state, has a menu of Tribal sovereignty information, short lessons, and even entire units for every U.S. History, Washington State History, and Contemporary World Problems unit that OSPI recommends. So YOU get to choose how much you wish to include in your units. The STI curriculum has recently moved off the old "moodle" site, been revamped/improved, and moved onto a new website for faster, easier access. The site address remains: www.indian-ed.org.

There is no fee to attend the training workshops and free clock hours and lunch will be provided.

Each training session can accommodate up to 40 participants and registration is required using the attached form. Each session will begin at 8:30 a.m. and go no later than 4 p.m. Wireless internet access will be available at each site and you are requested to bring (1) a laptop with wireless internet capability, (2) headphones which are helpful when viewing videos for lesson planning, and (3) your district's curriculum documents to align STI to your district's scope and sequence.
